

SESSION 2: Collecting as Archive

tues 28 april

in session 1, you observed and documented some of your “inputs” and began to brainstorm some frames, themes or consistent ideas that begin to emerge.

for our second session we will plan and implement two ways to archive, both physical and digital inputs.

PHYSICAL

i listed a few options, but feel free to choose those you might have close at hand; and archival box, a shoe box, a flat file, a chest of drawers. you will most likely change this over time depending on how it serves your practice. we are taking the first step.

for example, my college illustration professor had “old school” tear sheets from magazines for reference. these can be arranged and stored in a simple binder with plastic sleeves or a series of manilla folders. richter (german painter) arranged photos for reference and exhibition in large folio books called his atlas.

Gerhard Richter's Atlas, installation

Gerhard Richter's Atlas, installation

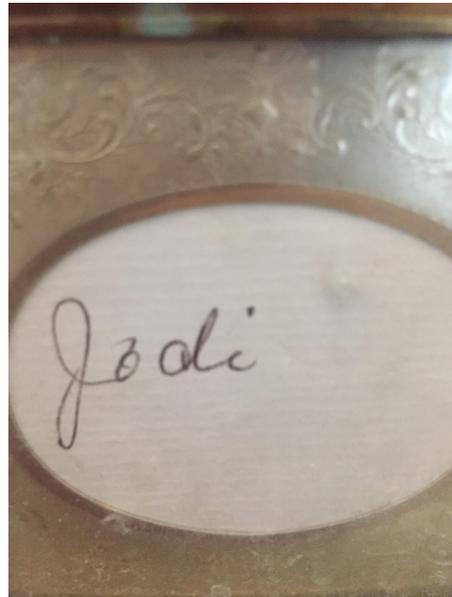

from these images/notes, i could “assign” or designate them into a few categories:

-text/script/writing

-nostalgia, home

-antique color

-estate sale stuff

your categories don't have to make sense to anyone but you. these are personal and idiosyncratic, meant for your reference.

TEXTILES

FIGURES

Summer papers winter papers

TEXT

COLOR

choreographer, Twyla Tharpe, arranges her ideas for new shows and projects, each in a banker's file box, easily found at office supply stores.

\(fun fact: Andy Warhol made time capsules from these\)

DIGITAL

at present, i organize my digital files using Google Drive (folders), the Clear app (for titles, lectures notes, artist lists, etc, quick thoughts) and tumblr.

i woefully under utilize the albums in my iphone photo stream, but it always (on long road trips as i clean out my phone) seems to have a lot of potential.

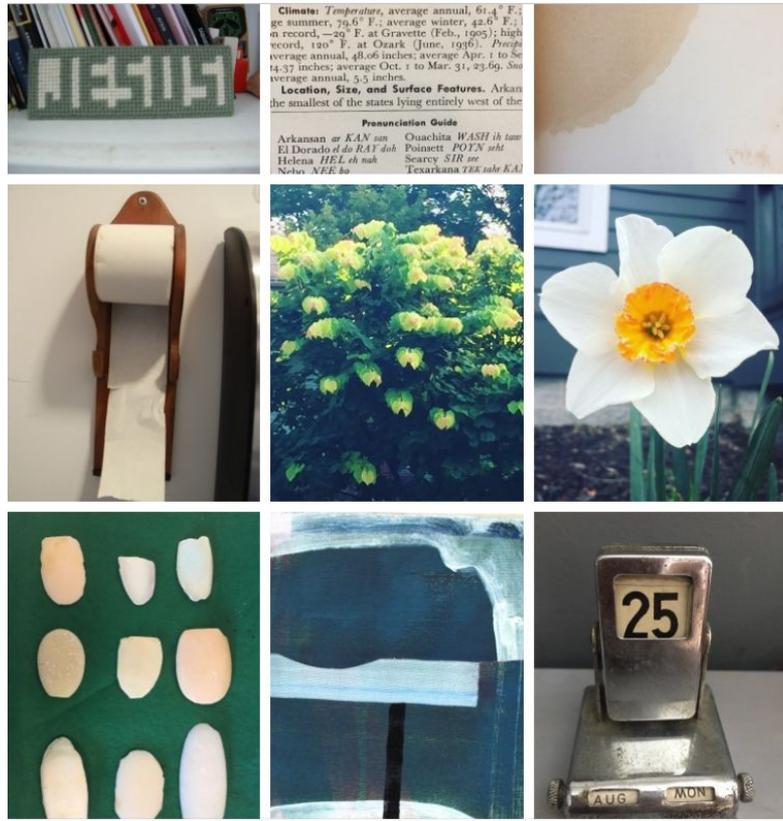

studio fodder

Posts Likes Following

studiofodder

Profile picture: A small image of a red door.

More options: Three dots icon

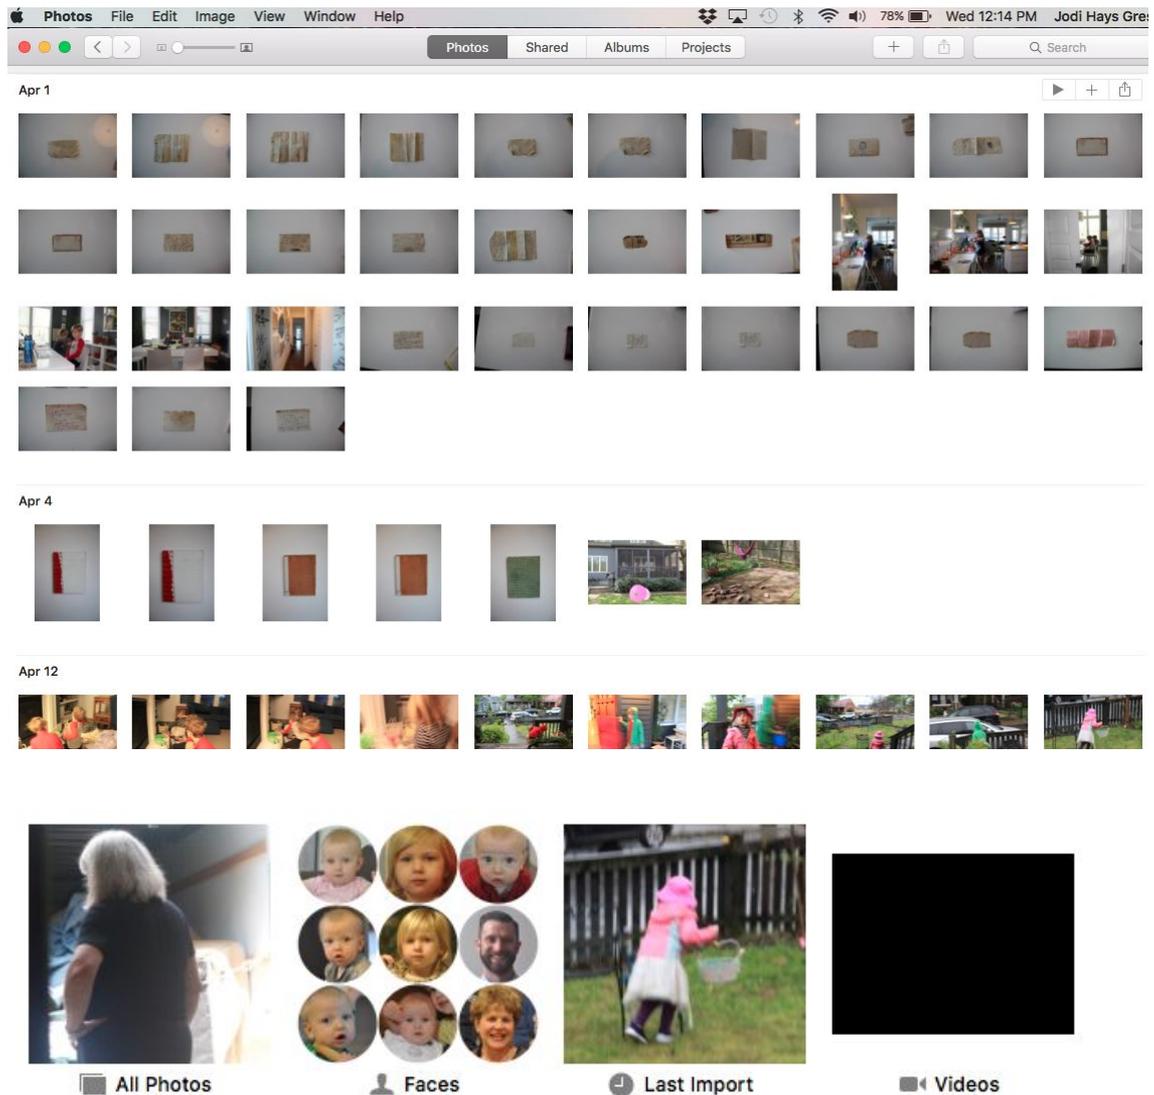

cricket 2:54 PM 14%

2020reading	10
Titles	306
Art words and ideas	87
2020 GOALS	7
Essential songs	126
Music	4
Vinyl	2
Today!	9
Purchases	8
Patreon	4

cricket 2:54 PM 14%

Titles

Gingham
Tug
Magic man
Fling
Your own devices
Lowell
The catholic Temper
The very start
Born
Stilled

Screengrabs, my MacBook Pro's Photos application

Apr 1

Apr 4

Apr 12

Document and upload to online (studio classroom)
By thursday 30 april